FARMER, PROPERLY FINANCED, CAN WIN OUT, SAYS REPORT
WAR FINANCE CORPORATION ADVANCES SAVE MANY MILLIONS.
REPAID PROMPTLY
Activity Is Restoring Confidence, Congress Told in Annual Statement.

Washington.—The American Farmer has demonstrated that when properly financed, no man can weather the worst economic storms, the War Finance Corporation declared in its annual report sent to congress Thursday.

The report set forth that 41 per cent of the money advanced to the agricultural industry had been repaid either in advance of maturity or when due.

Checks Demoralization
Advances by the corporation saved the industry many millions of dollars, the report declared, explaining that the corporation's officers believed its activity had produced a new confidence in the pouring of cash into spots where credit was tightest.

"It is generally recognized," the report continued, "that by providing as it did, financing for more than 6,900,000 head of livestock, the corporation checked the demoralization in the industry, gave the stock men a breathing spell, stabilized the market and turned the tide away from disaster toward reconstruction."

Decrease in Appeals
The report added that the gradual decrease in the number of appeals for loans further effected the general benefit which the corporation's operations have had on the agricultural credit situation. Advances for agricultural and live stock purposes totaling $12,570,000 in 27 states had been approved up to November 30. Of this $12,570,000 was 4,400 bankings of livestock, $71,600 to 113 livestock loans, $71,600 to 113 livestock loans, $71,600 to 113 livestock loans.

PRODUCTION CREDITS ASKED BEFORE SENATE COMMITTEE
Washington.—Advancing production credits to be available to farmers while making their crops under federal reserve system and the farm loan bureau, senators Norbeck, republican, South Dakota, and Simmons, democrat, North Carolina, introduced a bill Thursday before the senate banking committee. They explained features of bills which they had introduced to provide such credits and emphasized their opposition to any plan which might be administered by existing federal agencies.

Senator Norbeck declared a new bureau could be provided by extending the life of the war finance corporation and changing its operation to supplying the needs of farmers while producing crops.

Opposition along the line voiced by the two senators was placed before the committee by Gray S. Weaver, representing the American Farm Bureau Federation.

Greeks and Turks in Wordy Battle

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

The dispute was over the question of liberty of migration.

M. Venizelos bitterly attacked the Ankara government and protested against the alleged deportation of Greeks by the thousands from Anatolia.

Riza Nur replied in the same vein, charging Venizelos with being responsible for the Turco-Greek war and its consequences.

The voices of the two delegates rose to a high pitch, but were checked by the president who urged that they calm down. In view of this, Signor Montanaro declared the session adjourned, amid confusion.

WOMEN OF CITY TO FIGHT RETURN OF FATTY'S FILMS

JOIN WITH WHOLE NATION IN CONTESTING RETURN TO SCREEN
DISGRACE SEEN
Blow to Decent Screen Plays—What City's Women Say of It.

Fatty Arbuckle will not, again be seen on the screen by children of Janesville. The women of the organization of the city have an influence with local producers, according to statements made to the Gazette Thursday by women leaders.

Mrs. C. A. Sanborn, president of the City Federation of Women, representing a dues paying membership of 645 women, said: "I believe the women of the City Federation will do everything possible to discourage the showing of Arbuckle films in local theaters. There are plenty of movie actors whose records are free from scandal, and all who have the interests of the young people at heart will certainly be glad to say 'no' to restore 'Fatty' Arbuckle to favor."

Mrs. P. L. Mungen, president of the League of Women Voters, said: "I shall not allow my children to see an Arbuckle picture if shown locally. I did not approve of the suggestive elements in his previous productions and with the added detriment of the fact that he was brought out about his private life, I consider him absolutely taboo from the standpoint of all decent people."

Parent-Teachers Oppose.
Miss Agnes Grant, president of the Council of Parent-Teacher Associations, said: "I am sure my opinion is the same. It is not a question of Mr. Arbuckle being guilty or innocent of the charge of murder that was made against him. The facts that were proven about his past life in relation to his private life, are sufficient to cast into oblivion an actor whose popularity with children was as great as in the case of 'Fatty' Arbuckle. His reappearance on the screen is a disgraceful thing, and would cause the younger generation to think lightly of wrongdoing."

Miss Grant said: "The moral conditions are serious enough without making heroes of those whose private life is known to have violated those standards of morality which we wish our children to follow."

Had Effect.
Miss Mary Barker, W. Y. C. A. president: "I regard it as very unfortunate that further discussion of the Arbuckle scandal is being precipitated by this effort to restore him to his former position as a movie star. Such restoration would, in my opinion, have a bad effect on the young people. In that the impression would be made that a man who has been guilty of a disgraceful thing, and it will be forgotten in a short time, I do not believe that public opinion which forced the withdrawal of Arbuckle's films at the time of the scandal will be swayed by his reappearance on the screen."

Catholic Women Opposed.
Mrs. J. J. Sunningham, president of the Catholic Women's Club, with a membership of 325, said she also was of the opinion that the restoration would be opposed to the reappearance of Arbuckle in the movies, because of the effect it would have on children who saw his most ardent admirers formerly.

FARM DEPARTMENT SOUGHT BY BUREAU

Four More Towns Lined-up for Test

Annual Meeting Day Set for January 25 by Directors of County.

Establishing of an agricultural department with adequate office and assembly room in the court house, was advocated during the Farm Bureau meeting held in Janesville on Tuesday night. The directors of the different committees and associations formed to promote farming in Rock county into one central department with personal and capable representatives to meet the demands of the entire county was urged.

"We have progressed in Rock county, until such a point it is about time the farmers stand their ground and make known their wants," declared J. A. Craig, "Farmers own 95 per cent of the land in the county and they certainly merit enough office room to properly transact their business without being shoved off into some obscure corner at the whim of some county official."

Must Help Farming. "It is getting to be a proposition of where there must be organized development to help our farmers make a profit. If we don't, then we'll stop building roads and we won't be able to pay the salaries for county employees that like so much to tell the farmers where to head in."

Larger rooms were needed. It was suggested that the rooms could be had. There are now 10 active county organizations representing farmers, the majority of which now meet outside of the court house. Justified in having rooms for the Bureau and the county agent, it is proposed to go before the county board and request more room for a central "agricultural department" where all farm business meetings can be transacted without having to "bug the indulgence" of any county official.

Annual Meeting Set. A resolution was passed to form a committee of two members from the Farm Bureau and a representative of each livestock and marketing association of the county to make a request for additional room and equipment at the county board.

The annual meeting will be held January 25. Delegates are now being named in the townships. An all-day convention is planned at which time the 1922 county Farm Bureau program will be discussed.

SHIPPING BILL IS TO PASS SENATE

Administration Measure Will Go Through Within Next Two Weeks.

By DAVID LAWRENCE Copyright, 1922, by Janesville Daily Gazette.

Washington.—The ship subsidy bill will pass the senate within the next fortnight according to the advice given the administration within the last 48 hours by leaders who have made a careful canvass of the whole situation.

The fight to displace the ship subsidy measure with a farm credit bill has been going on for several days, with the administration feeling stronger and stronger.

Although President Harding has consistently been absorbed in dealing with the delicate problem of European economies, the truth is that he has been making the fight of his career to hold the republicans in the senate.

There are some senators who do not favor the subsidy bill itself and who will vote against it on final passage, but the administration has succeeded in convincing many of them that, irrespective of the merits of the subsidy bill, they ought not to lend themselves to the campaign of the filibusters and obstructionists who have thought they could kill the subsidy measure by keeping it from getting to a vote.

THE FEAR OF INSURGENT MEMBERS OF THE REPUBLICAN PARTY WHO HAVE SET OUT ON A CAMPAIGN OF OBSTRUCTION AND DESTRUCTION OF THE SUBSIDY BILL WOULD HAVE ENOUGH VOTES ON THE FINAL ROLL CALL TO BE PASSED. THEY HAVE INTERJECTED THE NORRIS FARM CREDIT BILL AS AN EFFORT TO DISPLACE THE SUBSIDY MEASURE AND LIVE THE SHIPPING BILL A PSYCHOLOGICAL BLOW AS TO WEAKEN ITS CHANCES AND QUIETLY SMOTHER THE WHOLE PROPOSITION.

But the administration has realized that if it were to force its own pet measure to a vote it would be a concession of impotence which would make it impossible to get any other legislation through this congress or perhaps the next. The test has been a great deal to Mr. Harding. His lieutenants in the senate have made good use of this line of reasoning; that the administration is not prepared to let the republicans who are opposed to ship subsidy, and even to some democrats, "You may not like the ship subsidy bill and may want to vote against it, but would you lend yourself to obstruction by blocs and minority rule? If you want to keep on friendly terms with the administration, here is a chance to do something for the administration without compromising your own position on ship subsidy. Permit it to come to a vote, give it a fair chance—that is all we ask and vote against the measure itself if you want—we shall not hold that against you."

This indeed solves the problem which many senators have been wringing about. They didn't want to break with the administration and vote against ship subsidy but some of them feel they must. They can maintain their own position by helping the administration pass the bill to a vote. Enough of them have consented to do this so that a vote on the ship subsidy seems assured.

Now as to the final tally: it will be very close. The proponents of the measure think they have a comfortable margin and they insist that as the debate develops they will have more votes because republicans will have to make up their minds whether they will vote against a party measure or stand by the administration. The democrats have not yet shown for the bill, it looks as if only one or possibly two of them will vote for the bill, but the interesting thing so far is not that the democrats have not become party to the obstructionist tactics of the insurgent republicans. The danger of such a coalition is that it might work both ways and that measures which the democrats may want to see passed for the benefit of their respective states will not get the necessary cooperation from republican leaders if a bi-partisan obstructionist bloc is formed.

Another phase of the situation is the two camps in the democratic party, the one interested in radically obstructing whatever it is possible to obstruct so as to hurt the republican party's chances at all cost, and the other more conservatively inclined which fears that all progress in government will be blocked unless they stand with the conservative republicans and prevent "blocc" rule by the radicals.

The administration is thoroughly satisfied with the shipping bill framed in the senate. In fact it is preferred over the house bill. The principal changes made by the senate are the limitation of the amount that can be expended for subsidy to $30,000,000 a year. The shipping board is confident the cost will not run over that sum any way, so the amendment is acceptable. The other change, which eliminated the Madden amendment requiring annual appropriations and authorizations, is also satisfactory, so shippers can buy vessels with an assurance of continuous government aid.

'23 TAXES MAY BE PAID AT BANKS

New System Expected to Prove Popular with Tax-payers.

City taxes for 1923 may be paid at any of Janesville's four banks on or after Jan. 1, at the office of the city treasurer.

Announcement of this radical departure from the old system of tax collection was made by City Treasurer W. J. Lennartz and City Clerk E. J. Sartell, Thursday, following an agreement entered into with the city by all the banks. It is expected to prove popular and it is anticipated that at least 50 per cent of the total tax levy will be paid through this new system.

The innovation is made possible through the plan adopted last year of sending out notices to all taxpayers, while under the old scheme it was necessary for each one to visit the treasurer's office to learn what charges had been levied against him.

The new plan of paying through the banks is simple. A taxpayer upon receiving his notice may go to his bank, pay the specified amount in cash, by check or by transfer of his savings, receiving therefor the bank's own receipt. In return he will give the bank his tax notice.

At the end of each day the bank will turn over to the city treasurer all the tax notices for which payment has been made, after crediting the city with the amount received. Upon receipt of the notices and the duplicate deposit slips, City Treasurer Lennartz will stamp the yellow notices paid and mail out the receipts to the individuals.

Mail Bills Christmas.

Although the new system will doubtless be used by many, the old plan of paying directly to the city treasurer at his office will still be followed. It is the taxpayer's choice where he would rather pay.

Mr. Lennartz, Mr. Sartell, City Assessor Frank Smith and their assistants have been busy all week preparing the notices for mailing next week. They will be placed in the mails on Christmas day, to be delivered Tuesday.

The officials request that those who may receive wrong notices, or who fail to receive any, notify the treasurer's office so the mix-ups may be straightened out early.

Usual License Fee for Cars in 1923

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Madison — Automobile owners will pay the regular license fee of $10 and the established general property tax for 1923 despite any action by the 1923 legislature to alter the methods of motor vehicle transportation, the secretary of state announced.

Bills to be introduced in the coming session of the legislature, if enacted into law, will not become effective until 1924, it is said.

The flat $10 license fee which all owners of pleasure vehicles must pay, will be due Jan. 1. In addition automobiles will be assessed as personal property. This tax may then be offset against the individual's state income tax.

Should the financing program of the county boards be enacted by the legislature the whole automobile taxing plan would be changed for 1924.

O'Donnell Damage Case up Friday

Facts in the $20,000 death-damage case brought by the parents of Arthur M. O'Donnell will be heard before Judge George Grimm in the Rock county circuit court on Friday. A supplementary complaint has been filed by the attorneys for the plaintiff, Nolan Dougherty and Grubb, in which the plaintiff, O'Donnell, is named as plaintiff in the place of Mr. Edward O'Donnell, the father, who died just after the first complaint was filed.

The jury was waived and agreement made between the litigants to present the case to the court with the hopes of having the amount of damages determined without the services of the jury.

The O'Donnell case was a traffic accident when a street car of the Beloit Traction Co., the defendant corporation, crashed into the interurban as the latter was waiting to climb on the rear platform.

The Wall Flower

By MARION RUBINCAM

SYNOPSIS OF PRECEDING CHAPTERS.

Pandora Nicholson is so painfully shy and self-conscious that it is almost agony for her to go into a room in which there are strangers. She believes herself to be one of the stupidest people alive; her Aunt Maude has frequently told her so. She cannot mix with the youthful society of Norristown; she cannot enter into their boisterous merrymaking. Her father, Jim Nicholson, is a poor relation in the home of Jim's prosperous brother, Peter; his wife, Aunt Maude, and their daughter, Gladys.

THE PASSING SUMMER

Chapter I. There must be something ridiculous about a first love affair, and a first tragedy. If so, it is all the more pathetic. Dora may have gone through that curious state known as love. If so, she felt it all the more intensely.

For Dora was 21 in years, and 15 in emotion, a bad combination. She could feel things so much more keenly. Besides that, her first love affair was with a man or a woman. And she had gloried in it, out of all proportion to its importance.

"He is so gentle," she said to herself and overlooked the fact that he was obviously weak.

"He is so thoughtful," she said again, and did not know that his yielding to Gladys was anything but thoughtful.

"He couldn't hurt anyone," she thought to herself, as a defense for his not hurting Gladys, and oblivious to the wound he had given her.

Over and over she wondered why Morton had suddenly ceased to like her.

Gladys is so much more attractive," she decided.

"Self-analysis should be pitiless, otherwise no one can reach an understanding of herself. If I were a novelist, writing a story with myself as a character, I should say—Dora has hair as limp as her disposition. She has nice eyes (I really have, but that doesn't count since I don't know how to use them. Gladys does), a straight nose with a little crook at the tip, a small mouth—no, a muddy skin and a mouth I don't like at all. She has a weak voice and a sad, effacing manner. She has nothing about her to interest other people" (Thank goodness, for no one is much interested in me. M. was, but it didn't last).

Occasionally during the Summer she added another item to this sweeping self-condemnation. She became quieter and quieter as the days went by. Even Aunt Maude grumbled now and then.

"For heaven's sake, child, do open your mouth once in a while! I haven't heard you say a thing but 'yes' or 'no' for weeks."

Which was almost literally true. Dora had said "yes" to everything she tried to avoid it, but could not without causing the family to notice. She had sense enough to see that the family would be only too ready to seize on this as a reason for her complete lack of spirits, so she kept up an excellent imitation of a casual and friendly manner when he was around.

"If I could find some faults in him, I might care less. But I haven't been able to. It wasn't his fault that Gladys was so much more attractive than I."

Under this she added, later.

"I'm not sure now that I want to find any faults. Life would not be worth living if one did not have an ideal. One need not possess the ideal necessarily."

Still later, showing the greater resignation that came with the passing weeks, she wrote:

"After all, why should the ideal ever be embodied in a human person, man or woman? Any ideal woman I've never met. I have, or I think I have, met the ideal man. But he isn't mine to love! Isn't it much better to keep them both mere images, as they were before? No one could be disappointed that way."

And once she wrote:

"I came out of my dream world for a little while and felt in love. That's over now—the feeling that I might find in a real person what I found before only in made up people. Now I must go back to the world in my own mind for my friends and my companionship."

"The only tragedy is that the dream world is less satisfying than it used to be. I do so want to know one man and one woman who would care for me as I could care for them. It wouldn't, in the man's case, be a love affair—that's over. I'm not the sort of woman that a man ever loves. I'm not pretty and am not clever enough for the unintelligent men, and not interesting and nice enough for the intelligent ones. I'm an inbetween, a misfit."

All this somewhat morbid introspection only increased in her the shyness that was already too great, only made her more shrinking, Aunt Maude's impatient.

"Why can't you get a girl on now and then? People won't come to you if you sit in a corner and look scared of them! If you've any brains at all, use them! You act like a regular nippy sometimes."

Under its crudeness, she felt it was true. But she shrank from more criticism as though it had been a stinging whip.

Then her aunt began to feel sorry for her, and her obvious pity only hurt her that much more. July she was so nervous she could not sleep, and her eyes stared out of her hollow face. By July several things began to happen.

Dinner Stories

Little Muriel had been corrected many times that day. Late in the afternoon her father brought home a friend of his.

This man was at once taken with Muriel and, smiling at her, said:

"Well, Muriel, I think I'll have to make up to you, Dad, a real dinner story. Let's be sweethearts, you and I. What do you say, Muriel?"

The last phrase, "What do you say?" to Muriel meant but one thing—a certain answer to be given politely by her.

"Dutifully Muriel looked at the man."

"Thank you," she replied.—New York Sun.

In front of a Broadway restaurant yesterday we saw a small tuxedoed man, waiting a girl in the window, baking butter-cakes.

We thought we detected an air of wistfulness about the fat and our heart was touched.

"Hungry, kid?" we asked.

"Sure," came his scornful reply. "Can't a fellow look at a swell dame without drawin' no crowd?"—Bible Dudley, in New York Evening World.

"Is this the foot-in-the-door?" asked the woman's voice over the city hall phone. The answer was "yes."

"Would you be so good as to tell me if you have a room for rent?"

"Why, you see, ma'am, I could hardly answer that question, you know."

"I don't see how you can hold your job then," the phone, went "click."—Portland Oregonian.

Lamb Hash—Chop in a wooden chopping bowl two cups of cold roast lamb, two cold boiled potatoes, and two green peppers. Add the juice of an onion (grated), salt and pepper to taste, and enough milk to moisten. Put the mixture in a greased frying pan and dot the top with pieces of butter. Bake in the oven till a delicious crisp crust forms on top. This can be served hot or cold. Add one-half cup walnut meats. Serve with whipped cream slightly sweetened and flavored with vanilla.

Dutch Pudding—Mix one-half cup granulated sugar with two heaping tablespoons of cocoa and one-half tablespoon salt. Add this mixture gradually to one and one-half pints of boiling water in a double boiler and cook 20 minutes, stirring to keep free of lumps. Add two-thirds cup of sugar and two tablespoons butter and cook another 10 or 15 minutes. When cooking is done, fold in a beaten egg. Pour into pudding mold, and when partially cool add one-half cup walnut meats. Serve with whipped cream slightly sweetened and flavored with vanilla.

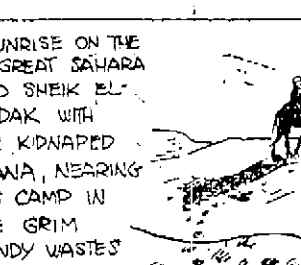

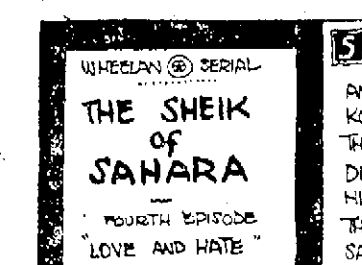

Mrs. Oliver Harriman of New York, society leader, philanthropist, says that women are falling down in their peculiar job of home making. That while she deplores the necessity of adding another burden to already overworked women, something must be done to make our homes more attractive so that people will not be forced to seek amusement and interest elsewhere. She adds that it is a pitiful sight to see men and women "milling" (whatever that may be) about in crowds on the streets, because although they have no definite place to go, any place is more attractive than home.

While we have not noticed many of our friends wandering the streets disconsolate because home was dreary, we cannot stress too much the homey home. It is a wonderful thing to look back when you have reached middle

"CHRISTIAN ARMY" WORKER TO PRISON

Lindsay, Turned Down by Local Council, Given 3-Year Term.

Capt. George A. Lindsay, second in command of the Christian Army Workers' post at Racine, who appeared here two weeks ago at a city council meeting and was refused permission to solicit funds here with which to support a post which he contemplated opening, was sentenced Wednesday to eight years in state's prison at Waupun.

Lindsay was sentenced in the Racine municipal court after he entered a plea of guilty to a statutory charge, on charges preferred by a 17-year old girl who declared that Lindsay had deceived and betrayed her.

Appearing before the city council here, Lindsay told of the work of the Christian Army and claimed to have served in the World War as an officer in the British army. He said he gave up his rights to an earldom in Scotland to his brother. He had been in the Christian Army but a short time and claimed that he was secretary to Bramwell Booth before the war.
